

Cut Loose, Get Wild

Acrylic Abstract Art 3-Day Intensive Workshop

Instructors: Suzanne Jacquot and Julie Schumer

Get wild with us! Bring your courage, your curiosity, your love of creating for this 3-day intensive abstract acrylic workshop. This workshop is chock full of learning, exploring, delving, trusting, getting wildly creative. You will be guided in a series of structured loosening up exercises, incorporating both painting and drawing, using acrylic paint and a variety of drawing tools in the creation of non-objective abstract paintings. You will gain courage, build trust in your artistic choices, grow your skills of design, explore your own inner painting language and nurture your creative spirit. Plenty of free painting time as well. Come prepared to rediscover the art of play and tap into your inner wildness! All levels welcome.

Suzanne Jacquot earned a BFA at UC Berkeley in psychology and design, an MFA from Mills College in sculpture and photography, and an Art Therapy Certificate from Sonoma State University. She has shown her work in various galleries and museums throughout the Bay Area, and currently teaches Abstract Art at Marin Museum of Contemporary Art and on-line. www.SuzanneJacquotArt.com

Julie Schumer is a self taught artist. Her work is shown in galleries across the United States and is in many private collections. She lives and works in Santa Fe, NM and in the past several years began teaching loosening up painting workshops. Her paintings may be seen online at www.julieschumer.com.
